

Humanity

You're idiotic; for you have trashed the perfect Earth that you have been blessed with.

You're stupid for ruthlessly killing each other during the crime that is war when these problems could be solved at a table during a conference.

You are immature for treating your friends and family as bad as you do, since they will care about you without a doubt, forever.

You are ignorant for not cherishing the gift of life -- no one was required to give it to you.

You are selfish for telling lies that only stir up fiery anger within your enemies and your friends.

You are ridiculed for the way that you bring your red-hot fists of fury down upon the innocent flesh of harmless beings.

You are purely brainless for betraying the love given to you by people that aren't obligated to give you their precious love.

You are lethal with your deadly weapons that you create; why do you aim them against each other?

Why do you do the things that you do?

No one makes you do the things that you do.

Humanity is intelligent, but they are cruel and callous because of how they choose to use their intelligence.

